VOICE from Ohio. Here is a portrait of Mr. Garrison, of Salem, Ohio. Shall we start YOU in this business,

The week just past has again been distinguished by further large purchases of copper on the part of the general body of consumers. As we reported in our last issue, the Lake companies made heavy sales at 114c., after which orders continued to come in at such a rate that they concluded to hold on from further sales for several days. In the meantime the London market gave unmistakable evidence of great buoyancy, and as in spite of their previous large purchases | it is said, she was formerly a leader in the consumers in this country had not secured sufficient of the sotal to cover their orders for my feet tgoods, this activity in the European markets naturally increased their anxiety to place their orders without further delay. The result was that as much as was offered at 12c. was eagerly picked up, and at that figure a few unimportant transactions took place; but afterwards the selling price was raised to 121c., then to 121c. and subsequently to 13c., at which latter figure it now stands. At the prices between 111c. and 13c. very large quantities could have been placed quite readily, but only a limited amount of business was done because there is no copper actually available for prompt shipment, and the producing companies are evidently in no hurry to contract for deliveries far ahead. Casting copper is also very scarce, and values of these descriptions have advanced in about the same proportions as for Lake copper, and the lowest prices now named are 113@3c. for carload lots.-Engineering and Mining Journal.

Senator Reagan on Silver.

Senator Reagan has this to say on the silver question: "I think a measare will be introduced to provide for the tree and unlimited coinage of silver and for the issuance of coin cer tificates in lieu of gold and silver certificates, and I have hopes that it will be made a law.

"I know of nothing that would better promote the prosperity of the country than the passage of such a bill. It would be beneficial by furnishing a It will, of course, be resisted by those who favor the money classes. They and labor, while the interests of the masses of the people of this country might enter the harem-become one are promoted by a sufficient circula- of the Sultan's 500 wives. tion of money and fair and just prices for property and labor.

"I do not doubt that the demonetization of silver and its subsequent partial remonetization has enabled the people of Great Britain to make vast sums of money by purchasing our undervalued silver and recoining it into rupees for use in India at par. We are guilty of a great folly in contracting our own circulation and thus aiding the English speculators. Wh should rather secure the advantages of the silver coin in our own country. By demonetizing silver we have enabled the English to buy it at low prices and to purchase the products of India with it at par. To illustrate farther, we enabled them to make large purchases of cotton and wheat from India and insomuch reducing our own exports of these commodities."
